Inspire. Educate. Empower.

young photographers alliance

Great talent isn't just born. It's developed.

All throughout the United Kingdom, there are young people who are passionate about expressing their vision of the world through photography. For those wishing to turn their passion into a profession, each year it becomes more and more challenging to break into the photographic industry.

Initially founded in New York in January 2009, the Young Photographers Alliance was created to help promote emerging photographic talent. Now establishing in Britain, the foundation is dedicated to rallying the resources of the creative community and the general public in support of young, gifted photographers. Led by some of the most notable professionals in the business, YPA will inspire and encourage budding photographic talent through:

- Scholarships/ bursaries
- Mentoring programs
- Educational outreach
- Networking opportunities/ events

We need your help! In order to support the next generation of photographers and the future of the profession, we are actively seeking partners and sponsors.
